

Preamble

My soul name is Ran-i, and I am a metaphysical practitioner, spiritual realist, and former Melchizedek teacher. This article contains Celestially divine information you will not find in school, university, church, or within any Bible.

I will explain how we obtained this knowledge and determined it to be a fact. My highly gifted psychic seer, Magna, was a master in all paranormal aspects. She specialized in astral projection and travel, excelled in psychometry and clairvoyance, and became a spiritual channel for Abaris. Her extraordinary abilities made it possible for her to time travel and converse directly with spirit beings from the other side of the veil.

Abaris is a Master Melchizedek spirit-being teacher and our spiritual advisor. During his fourteen years of frequent visits with us at the UBEC (Universal Brotherhood Educational Center), Magna and I received divine knowledge from spirit beings who reside within the realms of heaven. We also delved into supernatural activities, such as past life exploration.

We worked in unison to acquire the information presented in this article. We used crystals to locate and provide paths for her to astrally traverse time/space and visually re-experience events as they occurred. I recorded many of her astral sojourns, thus removing them from the realms of science fiction.

Some of this article's subject matter is too lengthy to print herein; therefore, I provide keywords in bold print to identify the material that requires additional information posted in Part 06

Part 01

The creation of all Soul-Beings.

Magda and I had been doing some past life explorations for several months when I asked her if she could locate and describe my first mortal life experience. Little did we know what I was asking because she psychically traversed time and space back to our origins. There is a link to the original recording of the Wrenching at the end of the article.

I will now explain how and when all souls came into existence. After the massive heat from the initial Eventuation (Big Bang) subsided sufficiently to allow mitosis to begin, several thousands of vines similar to grapevines emerged from the darkness of space. These vines were identical in structure and function. Each vine held seventy-seven cocoon-type pods. Each of the seventy-seven clumps of pods supported eleven additional pods that maintained twenty-one cocoons. Each of those twenty-one cocoons house three more cocoons, each containing and supporting seven souls that eventually wrenched free and began their singular existence. Mathematically speaking, each grapevine of seventy-seven cocoons nurtured 373,527 souls. Multiply that amount by an unknown number of trillions of vines, and you may begin to fathom the enormity of existing soul-beings. This mitosis continued until the divine number of souls emerged.

Part- 02

The seven degrees of soul beings

All souls are immortal after emerging from the Eventuation (Big Bang). Every soul's essence consists of pure energy and has a unique and identifiable frequency. During the emergence process, two energy levels of soul beings emerged. The First-degree soul beings consist of enormously high levels of pure intelligent energy endowed with the ability to maintain the balance and function of the universe. They are who and what they are and will never be other than what they came into existence – maintain universal balance and stability.

All you need to know about first-degree beings is that they exist, and this article only concerns soul-beings of third-degree and higher because they are the souls from which we mortals stem.

We begin our metamorphic journey from these third-degree energy beings through the fifth and seventh-degree evolutionary levels.

Shortly after each of these third-degree energy beings emerged from their protective cocoons, it found itself immersed in total darkness sprinkled with bits of twinkling specks of light. Each sparkling light was that of the previously emerged souls. They also found themselves in a sea of various-sized chunks of innate matter or space debris. This process occurred throughout the vastness of open, unorganized space and continued until a finite number of souls came into existence, a number too large for earthlings to conceive.

As pure energy souls, they instinctively, or because of curiosity, began communicating by sending bits of light energy to each other. As soul-beings of pure energy, they could sense and distinguish the vibratory rates of light and sound; thus, they could ultimately see and hear. And with each successive contact, they received the combined knowledge the other had previously learned, thus beginning their initial educational process.

As their thought transference improved, they learned to manipulate matter using this same thought energy. They learned how to move and rearrange chunks of space debris. With that knowledge and ability, they eventually began creating planets, solar systems, and galaxies. Planets do not miraculously appear; they must be carefully designed and constructed.

Somewhere within those countless eons (A unit of geologic time equal to one billion years), they perceived that if a soul-being could divide its energy in half, it could accomplish twice the amount of work. After many more eons of experimentation, they achieved that division using a form of mitosis, and a third-degree being could become two fifth-degree beings, thus creating what is known as soul-mates. That is no easy feat, and it may take a third-degree soul an eon or more to accomplish.

From souls' beginnings until the next step in evolution, they learned that every soul was unique in its knowledge and ability. Thus, they eventually learned how to create and develop plant and animal forms. As more eons passed, many different life forms thrived on various worlds. Then, someone realized we could see and hear their creations but could not touch, feel, or smell them. Since they had indwelt all forms of inanimate matter while constructing planets and solar systems, could they acquire the tactile if they indwelt their plant and animal creations by coexisting within them?

Since these soul-beings were immortal, they had no concept of mortal death. It was not until a soul-being attempted to indwell an animal creature that it abruptly shriveled and burned up. Thus, they quickly learned that their fifth-degree energy level was too high. They also discovered they could not divide themselves again because there was insufficient energy to sustain them. However, we eventually learned how to control and reduce our energy levels by returning bits of it to the universe. Thus becoming the seventh-degree beings that we mortals are today.

We experimented on a countless variety of mortal creatures for eons before perfecting the process of coexistence. We eventually learned how to successfully enter an unborn fetus and experience a human's natural birth. However, that act required taking responsibility for that physical structure because, as the solitary indwelling soul, we could no longer just hop in and out as we did with coexistence. Thus, we began our journey on the wheel of mortal karmic life.

At the time of the eventuation, all third-degree souls brought into existence were equal, free, and unencumbered, thus free to choose their path of destiny. i.e., they may remain as a 3rd-degree soul being, divide their soul into two 5th-degree beings, and further reduce their 5th-degree energy to become a 7th-degree being able to incarnate and reincarnate as they choose.

During multitudes of evolutionary progress, a massive group of souls merged into a gigantic, strategically controlled, benevolent bureaucratic society known as the Ancients of Days.

Part- 03

Willed and non-willed animals

There is a long and involved evolutionary history concerning the Ancients of Days (fathers in heaven) that I will skip and disclose a few Earthly facts.

Millions of eons before Earth existed, there was a special third-degree soul-being named Yasue, the Creator-son responsible for Earth's creation and everything on it.

Earth has many mythical legends that are factually true. Atlantis is one of them, and the story of The Planetary Rebellion will explain why Earthlings developed into the warmongering creatures we have become. I provide the information in part 06. and leave it up to you to take advantage of learning the truth.

I will now explain the difference between Earth's Willed and Non-Willed creatures.

All living creatures on Earth, both plant and animal, from the smallest blade of grass and insect to the largest tree and animal that ever lived, possess a soul. The Ancient of days considered all souls as non-willed. However, we are only concerned with the animal kingdom because that is where the distinction between willed and non-willed creatures came about.

There was a time within our ancient history when all animal species roamed free to live or die within an activistic survival of the fittest environment.

Beings of higher intelligence were observing these creatures. Whenever a creature made a moral decision to protect another of its species instead of itself, that species became verified as a willed species.

From out of the animal species on Earth, only three became verified to become willed beings. There are three mammalian-willed species on this planet: the simian from which man evolved and two from the aquatic types: the whale and dolphin. The difference between the willed and non-willed creatures is that the non-willed beings exist and survive primarily on their particular survival of the fittest attributes. In comparison, willed beings survive by making decisions and actions based on conscious thought. We, as willed beings, are entirely responsible for our actions.

How fifth and seventh-degree souls came about.

As spirit beings, we continuously evolved during our evolutionary growth and required identification. That is when we developed our soul names. Musical scale

You may have wondered where soul names originated and what they represent. In the beginning, when our souls came into existence, we were extremely intelligent beings. We consisted of pure energy, each having a distinct, identifiable vibratory rate. Every soul is identifiable from its unique energy signature and may become identified as easily as fingerprints or a retina scan.

Each soul identified its specific vibrations to determine its primary soul names. After the third-degree soul divided itself into two fifth-degree souls, we became a new individual soul being with a unique tonal signature requiring two separate identities.

Over time, these intelligent beings differentiated the tonal spectrum and developed a tonal alphabet and universal language.

What is the difference between third and 5th-degree soul names, and how are they determined?

Here is a short explanation of the results of splitting a third-degree soul into two fifth-degree soul-beings and establishing their names.

The process of dividing themselves in half is not like slicing a tomato; it is more like crushing a hypothetical granite stone into millions of granular bits. Each bit has a specific tone conveying various facets of their innate personality traits and abilities. By mutual consent, our two selves internally recombined our preferred bits to form two new, independent fifth-degree souls. Using a form of mitosis, we divide our third-degree energy into two individual fifth-degree soul beings. That is how newly developing soul-mates come into existence and derive their soul names.

Have you ever wondered why some people excel in math, music, or science while unable to walk and chew gum simultaneously? My granular bits analogy should also answer why some become adventuring explorers or natural leaders while others become librarians. Even identical twins, consisting of two individual seventh-degree souls who are genetically similar, their personalities often differ significantly, all stemming back to the granite particles from their third-degree division.

Fifth-degree souls will remain in that state until soul-mates mutually agree to recombine their energies; at this time, they reverse the process and once again become the third-degree beings they once were. Except now, this third-degree being has the combined knowledge and experience of both of themselves.

Celestially, there is only one tonal universal language, but somewhere in time, these souls eventually developed a multi-numbered letter alphabet that was a facsimile of their tonal language. That alphabet, somehow filtered down to Earth, modified over time, and utilized worldwide by multi-lingual races. For example, American teachers use phonetics to teach reading and spelling.

Suppose a fifth-degree soul-being desired to step onto the wheel of karmic life and experience a worldly mortal existence. It must lower its energy level to seventh-degree before it can enter and inhabit a physical structure. That is, to be born as a human child.

Conjecture: Suppose a third-degree soul-being had not divided its energy attributes evenly; more yin than yang, or vice-versa, could explain the cause of gender confusion among we mortals. Try explaining that to a psychologist treating a patient having an identity crisis.

Part - 04

How soul mates' names came about

A soul's energy is not quiescent; it vibrates continuously according to its emotion, producing sound and color. Ask anyone who can see auras.

Most everyone knows about having a soul; some also know we have a soul name.

Have you ever wondered where soul names originated and what they represent?

As spirit beings, we continuously evolved during our evolutionary growth, eventually requiring identification. That is when we developed our soul names.

In the beginning, when our souls came into existence, we were innately intelligent beings. We consisted of pure energy, each having a distinct, identifiable vibratory rate. Every soul is identifiable from its unique energy signature and may be identified as readily as fingerprints or a retina scan.

Each soul identified its specific vibrations to determine its primary soul names. After the third-degree soul divided itself into two fifth-degree souls, we became a new individual soul being with a unique tonal signature requiring two separate identities.

Over time, these intelligent beings differentiated the tonal spectrum and developed a tonal alphabet and universal language.

What is the difference between a third-degree's and a 5th-degree's soul names, and how were they determined?

Here is a short explanation of the results of splitting a third-degree soul into two fifth-degree soul-beings and establishing their names.

The process of dividing themselves in half is not like slicing a tomato; it is more like crushing a hypothetical granite stone into millions of granular bits. Each bit has a specific tone conveying various facets of their innate personality traits and abilities. By mutual consent, our two selves internally recombined our preferred bits to form two new, independent fifth-degree souls. Using a form of mitosis, we divided our third-degree energy into two individual fifth-degree soul beings. That is how newly developing soul-mates come into existence and derive their soul names.

Have you ever wondered why some people excel in math, music, or science while unable to walk and chew gum simultaneously? My granular bits analogy should also answer why some become adventuring explorers or natural leaders while others become librarians. Even identical twins, consisting of two individual seventh-degree souls who are genetically similar, their personalities often differ significantly, all stemming back to the granite particles from their third-degree division.

Fifth-degree souls will remain in that state until soul-mates mutually agree to recombine their energies; at this time, they reverse the process and once again become the third-degree beings they once were. Except now, this third-degree being has the combined knowledge and experience of both of themselves.

Celestially, there is only one tonal universal language, but somewhere in time, these souls eventually developed a multi-numbered letter alphabet that was a facsimile of their tonal language. That alphabet, somehow filtered down to Earth, modified over time, and utilized worldwide by multi-lingual races. For example, American teachers use phonetics to teach reading and spelling.

Suppose a fifth-degree soul-being elected to step onto the wheel of karmic life and experience a worldly mortal existence. It must lower its energy level to seventh-degree before it can enter and inhabit a physical structure. That is, to be born as a human child.

Note: Suppose a third-degree soul-being had not divided its energy evenly, more yin than yang, or vice-versa, could explain the cause of gender confusion among we mortals. Try explaining that to a psychologist treating a patient having a sexual identity crisis.

Part 05

What is required before a baby's birth?

Since the beginning, many soul-beings devoted themselves to divine judicial matters and ultimately developed what is known celestially as the Supreme Trinity Personalities. Within that august body resides the Ancients of Days, and within that judicial body resides the Union of Days, consisting of mortal and immortal soul-beings who oversee the implementation of universal mortal incarnations and reincarnations. In this instance, Universal means the Union of Days resides over and adjudicates all sentient life throughout the Universe; Earth is not the only place sustaining mortal life.

***

A baby is nothing more or less than the biological offspring of whatever specific species creates it. That is the physiological process, but what are a soul's celestial or divine requirements before engaging in an actual mortal birth?

Since no one on this planet knows the divine process a soul must accomplish before becoming mortal, it is time for you to become enlightened.

Reincarnation is a natural divine occurrence but does not happen spontaneously; it is a laborious process. A soul desiring to take on another mortality must accomplish many tasks before entering a fetus. Here is a short version of the divine regulations a soul-being wanting a mortal life on this planet must complete. Let us assume it is you, and we will track your progress. You must be in soul-state and have a valid reason for obtaining a mortal life.

For example, completing a project from a previous incarnation or settling a karmic debt would be a valid reason. With a valid reason in mind, you must submit a request through the Union of Days and justify those reasons. If and when they grant your request, your task has just begun. You must research the Akashic records or consult a psychic seer to identify and locate suitable parents. They should be souls who could provide you with the proper physical and mental genetic attributes needed to accomplish your future life's goals. The Akashic records contain the complete histories of everything that has occurred throughout the universe since the eventuation, or if you prefer, the Big Bang.

It is similar to our biblical god's enormous database in the sky, where he keeps track of every hair on your head. A section within these records holds all the predicted future events, as seen and reported by celestial clairvoyant seers from specialized schools. None of this is science fiction because these records and schools of highly gifted clairvoyant seers exist in many locations throughout the greater universe. The site of Earth's Akashic records resides within the archives of our system's capital, Edentia.

The second step in the process is to arrange with those who could agree to act as your guardians.

Very few people on Earth know the truth about who and what they are or what they do. Earthly mortals with heightened sensitivity gifts may sense and call them angels or spirit guides, and yes, they do exist. The series of personal guardians you choose will reside with you from before your birth to guide, advise, and protect you through that life experience. They will also be there to escort you to your place of recovery facility after your mortal demise. You must obtain those soul beings who are willing to preside as your personal guardians.

Having identified your guardians and prospective parents, let us continue the progress of your becoming mortal on Earth. At this point, you must contact each of the appropriate souls of your future mothers and fathers and seek their acceptance as prospective parents. And because of the fickle nature of Earth's mortals, it is best to have two or three alternative fathers.

Once you have identified several potential mothers and adequate fathers, let us continue your progress of becoming mortal on Earth. At this point, you must locate and contact each of them individually. They must each decide if they would be available and willing to take on such a monumental task. If the prospective parent is also in a soul state, it is easy to accomplish; go and talk to them. However, if that being is already a mortal on Earth, you would send one of your guardians to converse with the prospective parent's guardian. They must manage to convey your desire to their charge. Then, your guardian must get her notice of acceptance or rejection back to you. You follow this routine until your triad is complete: mother, father, and child. It should have become evident at this point in the acquisition process that if your prospective mother is already mortal, you must wait until she conceives. However, if your future mother is still in her soul state, she has most likely completed her required ritual of becoming mortal. So, she must wait for her prospective mother to conceive. If this is the case, you must continue waiting patiently until your future mother is born, has come of age, and has conceived. Once this has occurred, your nursery guardian will escort you to a pre-berthing area, a mortally constructed facility high above the planet. There, you will reside for six months, undergoing your preparations to enter a fetus. Part of that process includes ensuring that your fifth-degree energy level becomes reduced to a state of seventh-degree.

Since soul-beings do not breathe air during their time in a womb encased in amniotic fluid, you will receive instructions on how to begin breathing air in preparation for your earthly existence.

From this explanation, it should be evident that none of the processes of becoming born on Earth become accomplished in a week or two. It may take a hundred years or more to plan and actualize. Hopefully, you now have a better appreciation for those souls who accepted the responsibility of your existence during this incarnation process.

Plus, it would be best to have mutual recognition for all the other divine souls who assisted you through your acquisition period.

Author's Comment: This article began as a semi-political protest against the democrat's continued opposition to the Supreme Court's overthrow of Roe v Wade.

Regardless of the reason for its initial publication, the sentiment is the same. It would be a travesty against nature to sacrifice all the loving care provided by the hundreds of supporting soul beings who valiantly strived to assist their fellow companion on its chosen path of destiny only to have it sacrificed under the knife of an abortionist! I sincerely hope you have gained some divine knowledge from this brief article.